The Multifaceted Black

In 1969 black people need to be more directed, educated, and employed. In the wave of a new administration in the United States government that promises to be conservative, there is an urgent need for black awareness and determination.

Every possibility of stature should be pursued by the black populace. This is the time that demands the full participation of all black peoples in the arts, sciences, services, and professions. The time for black people to involve themselves in all these things is now; not singularly, but jointly. Now is the time for the Multifaceted Black.

Shaw University, long a believer in the progression of the black man, is dedicated toward the education of men and women. In order that blacks can be prepared for opportunities when they arrive. Here we hope to develop multifaceted blacks through an experience in a multifaceted curriculum and environment. The Shaw student is also a firm believer in the progression of the black man. A pride of heritage and the black consciousness that characterizes black colleges across the country is very prevalent at this university.

A challenge is now before us as a people and as an institution. Shaw has in the past borne the load and it is as true today as it ever was that Shaw will continue to accept the challenge. An effort to capture the spirit, the consciousness, and the beauty of blackness is made on the following pages. At Shaw we proudly accept the challenge and seek to give the world the Multifaceted Black.

The Dedication

Brother Medgar Evers
Brother Malcolm X

Reverend Martin Luther King, Medgar Evers, and Malcolm X are the reminder to black people that this is a confused world but that one must, nevertheless, choose his goals and pursue them with vigilance; even unto death. The lives that they led, the things that they stood for, and the achievements they made are inspiration to all mankind to work towards the elevation of their brothers. This book is dedicated to these three black martyrs in remembrance, in love, and in admiration.

I saw bickering, not between enemies, but between friends, The wrath of the young bellowing to the complacency of the old,

I saw disrespect, not from without, but from within, The male rejecting his role in society, yea even his gracious counterpart of the sexes,

I saw denunciation, not from the affluent who possess, but from the poor and ill repute, The impoverished turning their backs on themselves only to meet themselves;

I saw and I understood

I understood that my people had been stripped of their identity,

I understood that the raging, crying, rebellious child was searching for his brother,

I understood that respect had been stolen and understood the hesitancy in yielding what was left,

I understood the falseness and the farcicity deeply implanted beneath the apparition of grandeur,

I understood my Blackness.

I tried to tell the story of the black man from his roots on the shores of the Euphrates, yea the roots of the world,

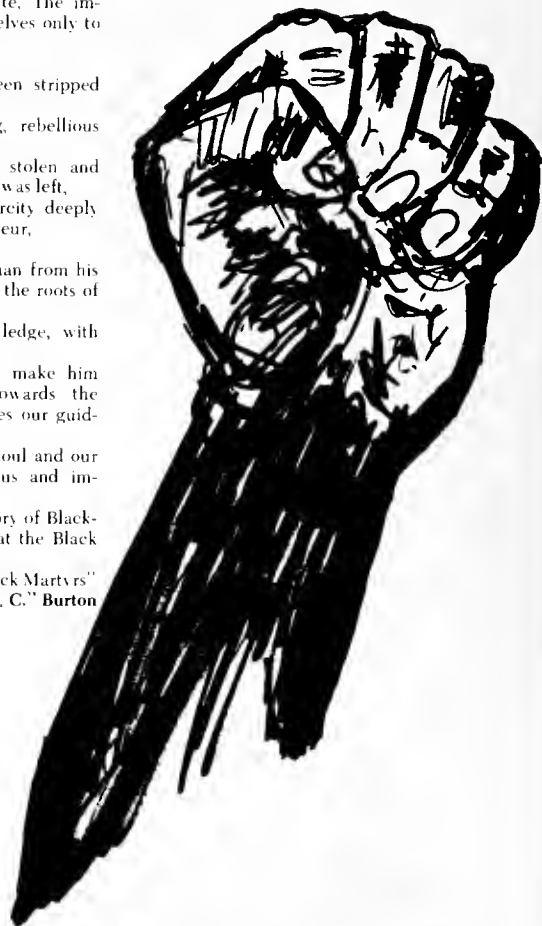

I tried to feed the child with knowledge, with hope, with courage, and with pride,

I tried to respect every brother and make him synonymously respectful; especially towards the gracious ebony queens from which comes our guidance,

I tried to accept each brother for his soul and our oneness of situation, not for his tacitous and immaterial material hangups,

I tried to live the beauty, pride, and glory of Blackness as it should be lived, and I died that the Black might inherit the earth

"A Message from Black Martyrs"

The Editorial Statement

This has been a year of change for black students throughout the nation as well as here at Shaw University. It has been a year when demonstrations were held, property damaged, threats and warnings issued, and students expelled. It has also been a difficult academic year.

As I view this year at Shaw I wonder whether all the students came to get an education or whether they came to get just a degree, or to have an outstanding social life. Even though all of these things are important in the pursuit of an establishment, the most important of them for Black people is education. To be a "Multifaceted Black" requires that we be educated as extensively as is humanly possible. We have to get out of the "party bag" and get into the "study bag" in order to best be involved in the "black bag."

The time for Shaw students to awaken to responsibility—for Shaw students are different from all other students—is now. Let's begin now to be examples to other black students across the nation. We are the leaders, not the followers, of tomorrow.

To my fellow seniors, I wish you the best of luck in whatever field you have chosen; to all the other Shaw students, I wish for you to make your class the best to ever graduate from Shaw University.

Theodore G. Booker

Editor of the 1969 Bear

President's Message

During this year throughout the nation at large, it has not been an easy year. The turbulence that surrounds the American college campus and dislocation which have taken place within it have not produced a sense of unity and community between administration, faculty and students but rather has further widened the gap creating the sense of panic, frustration, hysteria and suspicion.

We, here at Shaw, have been extremely sensitive to the crises of the American college which the activities of this year has dramatized. Our sensitivity has not been the sensitivity of fear but rather one of concern.

Shaw University was founded during the turbulent period of our nation's history. Eighteen sixty-five was hardly an auspicious time for the Shaw idea. This idea envisioned the creation of a true university in the southland whose services and benefits would be available to all without regard to race, creed, color or previous condition of servitude. It succeeded in becoming a true university, but it did not succeed in providing its benefits and services to all.

The culture in which it planted its seed was hostile towards the idea that all citizens of all races would comprise the Shaw community. Because this was the idea, the culture was also hostile towards the existence of an institution within its midst whose philosophy exposed and whose charter compelled the basic American principle.

WSHA-FM

WSHA-FM, is a new non-commercial educational radio station which began broadcasting from the campus of Shaw University the week of November 11. WSHA, a ten watt station, produces a signal that covers most of the city of Raleigh at 88.9 on the FM dial.

WSHA has been established to serve the entire Raleigh community educationally and culturally as well as to train Shaw students to become professional broadcasters as part of the new Communications curriculum being established at Shaw. Students are being taught through non-credit workshops taught by Mrs. Elizabeth Czech and Dr. James Lynch. Mrs. Czech, associate professor of communications at Shaw, is supervisor of the radio station and was instrumental in setting up the broadcasting curriculum that will lead to an eventual major in broadcasting as well as mass media communications. Dr. Lynch, from Ohio State University, designed the radio station as a consultant and is currently supervising the installation of the station facilities.

Thirty-one programs will originate locally. Others are via special tapes from the National Educational Radio Network and from the Broadcasting Foundation of America. Nightly at 6:30 there will be special series on many aspects of the history and the present of the black man in his various environments. Live talent programs will be broadcast regularly at 7:15 each evening. The Shaw Family is especially proud of its newest addition, WSHA-FM.

SHAW STUDENTS VISIT MIDDLE EAST

Before the smoke from the guns of the Civil War had fully settled, a recently discharged soldier from the Union Army was en route to Raleigh on the first train that passed over the rails of the Seaboard after the cessation of hostilities. On October 10, 1865, Henry Martin Tupper, native of Monson, Massachusetts and graduate of Amherst College and Newton Theological Seminary, arrived in Raleigh.

On December 1, 1865, in a room in the old Guion Hotel (where the State museum now stands) a few illiterate ex-slaves sat at the feet of Henry Martin Tupper in a theological class. Out of this seed was formed the adventure in higher education for the Negro which pioneered a new era in American higher education. It was thus that Shaw University was born.

By mid-summer of 1866, the Raleigh Institute was formed and housed in a frame structure above a church built with student and volunteer help and enrolling seventy-five students for training as ministers and teachers. In 1870, the name was changed to The Shaw Collegiate Institute and the present campus site was purchased. That same year, construction was begun on the major building to be placed in the center of the new campus. This building, Shaw Hall, was named for the benefactor, who had provided the funds for the purchase of the new campus, and for whom the school was named, Elijah J. Shaw of Wales, Massachusetts. Mobilizing students, ex-slaves and others, this impressive building was constructed entirely by unskilled laborers who dug the clay, molded the brick by hand, felled the timber and erected a structure which was vivid testimony of the newly freedman's determination to win his way into the ways and woof of American life.

Contrary to much prevailing pedagogical opinion of the time, Tupper conceived of Shaw as an institution which would become a full fledged University. By 1875, this vision was realized with the granting of a charter by an act of the General Assembly designating the institution as The Shaw University and stipulating that . . . no pupil or pupils should ever be excluded from the benefits arising therefrom . . . on accounts of race, color, or previous conditions of servitude.

To fulfill the hope of an educational institution whose services would be available to all, and which would contribute significantly to the rebuilding of a nation divided by war and strife, the founder and first president set out to establish a faculty of distinguished, dedicated men and women, and programs of education which would become known for their integrity and high quality.

In the short period of seventeen years, Shaw University had become established as a vital force in the region and nation.

The Leonard Medical School was formed in 1882, and breaking with the pattern of medical education then in vogue, opened as a medical school with a four year course of study based upon a four year collegiate degree. With a teaching hospital, the curriculum combined pre-clinical and clinical instruction into a pattern that subsequently became adopted by other medical schools in the nation.

Before the end of the nineteenth century the University consisted of a school of medicine, school of pharmacy, school of law, school of theology, college of arts and sciences and a normal school.

To its campus came students from all over America and several foreign countries, and its influence was being felt as its graduates returned to their communities as physicians, pharmacists, lawyers, clergymen, and teachers.

Tupper, who had been the driving force behind the development of Shaw from its incipency, passed in 1893, and each of his successors has made his own unique contribution to the perpetuation of his ideals, and each left an indelible mark of his own educational philosophy, personality and character upon the institution.

Throughout its history, Shaw has played a leading role in the education of young men and women from the under-developed countries of Africa. More than 10,000 students have studied in its classrooms, and it counts among its alumni a large number of leaders throughout the nation.

Under authorization from the Board of Trustees, a distinguished group of noted educators was formed in 1965 to form a Commission for the preparation of a Master Plan for the University's growth and development in the decades ahead. Directed by the Institute for Educational Planning, Inc., of New York, this Commission has set forth in clear precise terms the shape of the Shaw of the future.

Once again breaking with prevailing tradition and folklore, Shaw initiated in 1965 the "Shaw Plan of Education", designed principally to meet the peculiar educational needs of the time, and began the work of rebuilding and expanding its physical facilities to serve a larger student population.

As Shaw becomes more thoroughly involved in its second century of service the Shaw Community looks back over its past with pride, and toward its future with hope.

Queen-Mother-Daughter of Africa
Sister of my Soul
Black pride of my Passion
My Eternal Love

I greet you my Queen, not in the obsequious whine of a cringing Slave to which you have become accustomed, neither do I greet you in the new voice, the unctuous supplications of the sleek Black Bourgeoisie nor the bullying bellow of the rude Free Slave—but in my own voice do I greet you, the voice of the Black Man. And although I greet you anew, my greeting is not new, but as old as the Sun, Moon, and Stars. And rather than mark a new beginning, my greeting signifies only my Return

My Queen, it is hard for me to tell you what is in my heart for you today—what is in the hearts of all my black brothers for you and all your black sisters—and I fear I will fail unless you reach out to me, tune in on me with the antenna of your love, the sacred love in ultimate degree which you were unable to give me because I, being dead, was unworthy to receive it; that perfect radical love of black on which our Fathers Thrived. Let me drink from the river of your love at its source, let the lines of force of your love seize my soul by its core and heal the wound of my Castration, let my convex exile end its haunted Odyssey in your concave essence which receives that it may give. Flower of Africa, it is only through the liberating power of your re-love that my manhood can be redeemed. For it is in your eyes, before you, that my need is to be justified, Only, only, only you and only you can condemn or set me free.

Be convinced Sable Sister, that the past is no forbidden vista upon which we dare not look, out of a phantom fear of being, as the wife of Lot, turned into pillars of salt. Rather the past is an omniscient mirror: We gaze and see reflected there ourselves and each other—what we used to be, what we are today, how we got this way, and what we are becoming. To decline to look into the Mirror of Then, my heart, is to refuse to view the Face of Now

Black Woman, without asking how, just say we survived our forced march and travail through the Valley of Slavery, Suffering, and Death—there that Valley there beneath us hidden by that drifting mist. Ah, what sights and sounds and pain lie beneath that mist! And we had thought that our hard climb out of that cruel valley led to some cool, green, and peaceful place—but it's all jungle here, a wild and savage wilderness that's overrun with ruins.

But put on your crown, my Queen, and we will build a New City on these ruins.

The Alma Mater of the
Shaw University

Hail dear old Shaw U., thy sons
revere thy name;
Long shall thy works be proud,
undimmed thy fame;
Time shall thy praises sing,
glory repay thy tears;
And loud thy praises ring through all the years.

Noble thy hallways, noble thy grassy plains;
Nobler the hearts of men, where
thou dost reign;
All we who love thy name, stout
hearts that shall not fail;
All rise and loud proclaim, Alma Mater Hail!

“Conversation Is but Carving”
